

Our Father (Like New Winds...)

Prayer, meditation, contemplation do seem to be returning to the public scene again, in a number of ways and forms. You get newspaper articles now about the benefits and value of meditation — even book reviews in a business and economics magazine. And there are more books coming out all the time now about praying and meditating, as well as books of prayers — examples, or samples which may be helpful to people at certain times. That's a bit what the programme is about, I think: as I've used such samples quite often here. Well, today, from a new collection just published, here's one longer one called Prayers for someone who has grown tired of the Church.

QQ. Tablet 4/9/76 p 870

For a break for music, let's listen again today for a song and a version of it that I've often used in these programmes, which I hope you enjoy as much as I do.

"Turn, Turn, Turn" — To everything there is a season, by the ~~Daughters of the Cross~~ <sup>Daughters of the Cross with</sup> Peter Knight — his orchestral ~~band~~ <sup>MUSIC</sup>

PRAYERS ("It's Me O Lord" p 128)

Another piece now from 'Prayers for impossible Days' QQ.

TABLET 11/9/76

p 894